LOG LINE

Plagued by a series of apocalyptic visions, a young husband and father questions whether to shelter his family from a coming storm, or from himself.

SYNOPSIS

Curtis LaForche lives in a small Ohio town with his wife Samantha and six-year-old daughter Hannah, who is deaf. Curtis makes a modest living as a crew chief for a sand-mining company. Samantha is a stay-at-home mother and part-time seamstress who supplements their income by selling handmade wares at the flea market each weekend. Money is tight, and navigating Hannah's healthcare and special needs education is a constant struggle. Despite that, Curtis and Samantha are very much in love and their family is a happy one.

Then Curtis begins having terrifying dreams about an encroaching, apocalyptic storm. He chooses to keep the disturbance to himself, channeling his anxiety into the obsessive building of a storm shelter in their backyard. His seemingly inexplicable behavior concerns and confounds Samantha, and provokes intolerance among co-workers, friends and neighbors. But the resulting strain on his marriage and tension within the community doesn't compare to Curtis' private fear of what his dreams may truly signify.

Faced with the proposition that his disturbing visions signal disaster of one kind or another, Curtis confides in Samantha, testing the power of their bond against the highest possible stakes.

DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT

Anxiety is born out of having something to lose.

When I began writing Take Shelter in the summer of 2008, I was in the middle of my first year of marriage. Although both my career and personal life were on a positive track, I had a nagging feeling that the world at large was heading for harder times. This free-floating anxiety was part economic, part just growing up, but it mainly came from the fact that I finally had things in my life that I didn't want to lose. All of these feelings filtered directly into the characters of this film.

Take Shelter follows Curtis LaForche, a working class husband and father, as he deals with the panic that arises from a series of terrifying dreams. For Curtis, these dreams are either harbingers of a supernatural storm, or early symptoms of something he's feared his entire life. Curtis' strongest, most immediate reaction is to protect his family, his wife Samantha and their six-year-old daughter Hannah. The question for Curtis becomes, what is he protecting them from, the storm or himself?

I wrote Take Shelter because I believed there was a feeling out in the world that was palpable. It was an anxiety that was very real in my life, and I had the notion it was very real in the lives of other Americans as well as other people around the world. This film was a way for me to talk about that fear and that anxiety. I hope there is an answer to this feeling by the end of the film. I believe there is, and it's the reason that this wonderful group of people came together to help me make Take Shelter.

JESSICA CHASTAIN (Samantha)

Jessica Chastain has emerged as one of Hollywood’s most sought after actors of her generation.

Born and raised in Northern California, Chastain attended the Juilliard School in New York City. While there she starred in Romeo and Juliet and went on to receive glowing reviews for her performances in The Cherry Orchard opposite Michelle Williams at Williamstown; and Richard Nelson’s Rodney’s Wife opposite David Strathairn off-Broadway at Playwright’s Horizons.

Chastain will next be seen starring opposite Brad Pitt and Sean Penn in the drama The Tree Of Life, written and directed by Terrence Malick for River Road Productions. The story concerns the loss of innocence as seen through the eyes of the son of the characters played by Chastain and Pitt. The film was shot in Texas in early 2008 and will be released in May 2011.

Chastain also stars as the female lead in Miramax’s The Debt alongside Helen Mirren and Sam Worthington. Chastain plays an Israeli Mossad agent sent on a mission to apprehend the WWII Nazi surgeon from the concentration camp who tortured Jewish prisoners. Production took place in Budapest and Tel Aviv.

Chastain will also be seen in Ami Mann's upcoming feature film, The Fields. This psychological thriller is based on true events that took place in a small Pennsylvania town in 1973. Jessica stars alongside Sam Worthington and Chloe Moretz.

Chastain recently wrapped production on Dreamworks' adaptation of the best-selling Kathryn Stockett novel The Help playing Celia Foote, an insecure Southern lady constantly trying to fit in with the high society women who reject her. The story centers on black maids working in white households in the early 1960s in Jackson, Mississippi. Viola Davis, Emma Stone, Bryce Dallas Howard and Octavia Spencer are among the cast. The film will be released in August 2011.

Chastain will soon begin filming Wettest County in the World opposite Shia LaBeouf, Mia Wasikowska, Guy Pearce, Tom Hardy and Gary Oldman. The film will be directed by John Hillcoat and produced by Douglas Wick.

In 2009, Jessica played the role of Desdemona in the classic play Othello opposite Philip Seymour Hoffman. Directed by Peter Sellars, the project ran beginning in Vienna, then Germany and finishing in New York.

At the senior class Juilliard showcase, Jessica landed a coveted talent deal with Emmy award winning executive producer and writer John Wells, the show runner of "E.R.", "West Wing" and producer of White Oleander. After completing a pilot for John Wells and director PJ Hogan (My Best Friend's Wedding), Jessica returned to the stage in the Los Angeles Wadsworth Theatre production of Salome, where Academy Award®-winners Estelle Parsons (director) and Al Pacino hand picked Jessica to play the title role of 'Salome' opposite Al. Continuing the collaboration, producer Barry Navidi commenced the film version of Salome entitled Wild Salome directed by Al Pacino, where they filmed behind the scenes and portions of the play's production.

Chastain's stage work in Salome received enormous critical attention and led to her landing the dynamic title role of Jolene in the Dan Ireland directed production opposite Rupert Friend, Frances Fisher, Dermot Mulroney and Michael Vartan. This adaptation of the E.L. Doctorow (Ragtime) short story, Jolene depicts a young woman's odyssey of relationships over the course of ten years. Chastain won the Best Actress Award at the 2008 Seattle Film Festival for this role.

Chastain currently lives in California.

GREG STRAUSE and COLIN STRAUSE are executive producers of Take Shelter. Since moving to Hollywood as teens in the mid-90s, Greg and Colin Strause have charted a meteoric rise in the film world: from self-taught visual effects wizards to renowned directors. It's an incredible journey that's been documented everywhere from Forbes to the front page of the Wall Street Journal. With their boutique FX house, Hydraulx, the brothers have contributed visionary sequences to a string of blockbuster films like Wolverine, 2012, 300, X-Men: The Last Stand, The Incredible Hulk, and The Day After Tomorrow. Their work on the latter brought Greg a BAFTA for best achievement in visual effects and elevated them to the upper echelon of visual effects supervisors. More recently, they worked on over a third of the revolutionary age altering shots in the Academy Award®-winning feature, The Curious Case of Benjamin Button. Along the way, they've collaborated with some of the industries most respected directors and producers, earning the trust of such luminaries as David Fincher, James Cameron and Roland Emmerich.

But it's in their capacities as filmmakers that where Brothers Strause really excel. With their unflinching commitment to storytelling and instantly recognizable aesthetic, they've created some of the decade's most imaginative music videos. They first splashed onto the scene in 2000 with Colin's MTV Video Music Award for Best Art Direction on the Red Hot Chili Pepper's "Californication." The following year, the Brothers Strause were nominated for two VMAs (Best Rock Video; and Best Directors) for Linkin Park's career-catapulting "Crawling." Their recent work includes 50 Cent's chart topping, post-apocalyptic "Get Up," and Usher's "Love in this Club," a 2008 VMA nominee (Best Male Video). Their uncanny vision and storytelling talents quickly garnered attention in the ad world, and the Brothers Strause have built an impressive commercial reel with campaigns for Toyota, Universal Studios, Playstation's God of War, Gatorade, Coca-Cola, Ford, Pennzoil and Shell.

In 2007, the Brothers Strause reached new career heights: co-directing their first feature for Twentieth Century Fox, Aliens vs. Predator: Requiem. Heralded by Variety as "ingeniously creepy," Greg and Colin delivered on their promise to return the franchise to its horror origins. They recently re-teamed with James Cameron, working their magic on Avatar, the Jack Black visual effects epic Gulliver's Travels and directing/producing their second feature film, Skyline.
